DETAILED ACTION

Status of Claims

1. This action is in response to the amendment filed on 14 September 2004.
2. Claims 1-11 have been amended.
3. Claims 12-17 have been added.
4. Claims 1-17 have been examined.
5. The rejections of claims 1-11 remain the same.
6. The rejections of claims 12-17 are new.

RESPONSE TO ARGUMENTS

7. Applicant's arguments received on have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Referring to the previous Office action, Examiner has cited relevant portions of the references as a means to illustrate the systems as taught by the prior art. As a means of providing further clarification as to what is taught by the references used in the first Office action, Examiner has expanded the teachings for comprehensibility while maintaining the same grounds of rejection of the claims, except as noted above in the section labeled "Status of Claims." This information is intended to assist in illuminating the teachings of the references while providing evidence that establishes further support for the rejections of the claims.

With regard to the limitations of claims 1, 5, 7, 9, and 10 Applicant argues that a document name is always displayed on an operation panel of the printer. The Examiner can find no evidence of this assertion within Mullin. In addition, Sperry, in at least Figure 6 as well as related text in staring at column 8, line 54 discloses editing the document title.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mullin et al. (US 5,970,218A) in view of Sperry et al. (US 5,995,723A).

Examiner's note: Examiner has pointed out particular references contained in the prior art of record in the body of this action for the convenience of the Applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply. Applicant, in preparing the response, should consider fully the entire reference as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the Examiner.

Claims 1-11:

Mullin, as shown, discloses the following limitations.

- judgment means for judging whether or not a secured print is designated (inherent);
- display means for displaying an input screen on which a document name corresponding to the print job is inputted in a case where said judgment means judges that the secured print is designated (inherent);

- setting means for setting the document name inputted using_ the input screen to the print job before the print job is transmitted to the printing device such that a third person can not recognize an attribute of the print job; (see at least Figures 3a and 3b as well as column 2, line 65 to column 3, line 20);
- input means for inputting identification information (see at least Figures 3a and 3b as well as column 2, line 65 to column 3, line 20);
- determination means for determining whether the identification information that has been input by said input means matches the identification information attached to a received print job (see at least Figures 3a and 3b as well as column 2, line 65 to column 3, line 20);
- wherein if a match is determined by said determination means, the print job corresponding to said identification information is executed by the printing device (see at least Figures 3a and 3b as well as column 2, line 65 to column 3, line 20).

Mullin does not disclose the following limitations, but Sperry, as shown does.

- display means for displaying at least one of a document name and user name appended to the print job received from said host computer (see at least Figure 6 as well as related text in starting at column 8, line 54);
- designating means, if information relating to multiple print jobs is being displayed on said display means, is for designating a print job, from among the multiple print jobs so as to execute the print job (see at least Figure 6 as well as related text in starting at column 8, line 54);
- transmitting means for transmitting the print job to which the document name is set to the printing device so as to print the print job by the printing device wherein the input screen is displayed and said setting, means sets a document name at every time in which the secured print is designated (see at least Figure 6 as well as related text in starting at column 8, line 54).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to combine the private print techniques of Mullin with Sperry's technique of altering the document title of a print job because this enhances Mullin's structure of maintaining discretion while printing sensitive or classified document by not revealing specifics such as, for example, a title or specific reference to information contained within a document.

Claims 12-17:

The combination of Mullin/Sperry discloses the secure printing system above. Sperry also discloses altering the document title of a print job. Mullin/Sperry do not specifically disclose:

- said display means displays the document name, which is acquired from the print job, in a case where the secured printing is designated, and said setting means is capable of setting a different document name from the document name displayed by said display means.
- conversion means for converting print data into intermediate code data;
- edition means for editing the intermediate code data converted by said conversion means; and
- means for setting a document name to the intermediate code data edited by said edit means.

However, the Examiner takes Official Notice that it is old and well-known in the computing arts at the time of the invention to edit, alter, or otherwise change the name of a document, as well as the driver code for processing a printer task. Altering document names is a rudimentary function of word processors.

Conclusion

10. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
11. A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
